Human Resource Manual

1. Overview

1.1 Introduction: About Samarthan

Samarthan is a leading non-profit organization with significant presence in the Indian states of Madhya Pradesh and Chhattisgarh. With a belief that a strong civil society is a key to socio-economic development, Samarthan started out in the year 1995 as a support organization building capacities and networks of voluntary organizations working at the grassroots. Gradually, Samarthan started working to promote and strengthen participatory rural and urban governance. We worked for strengthening the concept of citizenship in light of the rights and entitlements provided by the State.

We began our work in the Sehore district of Madhya Pradesh, gradually spreading our intervention to other districts. Samarthan's origin was concurrent to the implementation of 73rd Constitutional Amendment in the state. Over the years, we realized that underdevelopment could also be attributed, in large part, to poor governance which affects the implementation of development programmes. We believe that participatory governance is fundamental to sustained and equitable development and effective participation by all stakeholders, especially the marginalised, socially excluded and disadvantaged groups, is in turn crucial for promoting good governance. Having gained confidence in our understanding of issues on the ground, we took up the task of strengthening governance by ensuring greater participation of Panchayati Raj Institutions (PRIs) and by engaging in advocacy with the administration using evidence generated from our work at the grassroots.

We also promote and encourage involvement of local population in planning, execution and monitoring of development projects thereby challenging the mainstream "top-down" development model. In order to enhance public participation in local governance in rural and urban areas, Samarthan has developed vibrant and replicable models through capacity building of elected representatives and empowering Gram Sabha members. The areas of our intervention have ranged from education, employment and social security to water, sanitation and health.

While our work on governance has enhanced our credibility and eminence, we continue to strengthen our civil society partners through training and network building. Over the years, we have also emerged as a knowledge center, producing valuable action research on a range of development issues. Our regular and diverse publications testify to our domain expertise in the subjects of forest rights, gender, decentralization and transparency and accountability. We have harnessed the power of Information Technology for taking our capacity building and outreach efforts to the next level. We have been successfully running e-learning programmes on Social udit and Decentralized Planning and have a significant presence in the social media.

The programmes of Samarthan are currently organized around three centers. The details of the centers is the following:

Center for Social Accountability for Addressing Urban and Rural Poverty (CSAP) team works on the issues of governance of various development programmes. The team specializes in participatory planning, community monitoring and social audit etc. The institutions of local governance in rural (Panchayati Raj) and urban (Nagar Panchayats and Municipalities) are the backbone of grassroots democracy and political empowerment of women. Therefore, the center works to strengthen capacities of the local governance institutions. Recently, the Trainers Manual on Social Audit, prepared by Samarthan, has been published by the NITI Ayog as a national learning resource to be used by the state level officials and trainers.

The Center for Environment, Water, Sanitation and Community Health (CEWASH) works towards designing and upscaling grassroots actions in the sector of environment, water, sanitation and health. The team at the Center handles large scale programmes around water, sanitation and community health. There is an effort to develop model watershed areas based on the principles of participatory development in the district of Sehore. Recently, the team worked towards addressing the issues of drought and distress migration in Bundelkhand region of MP.

The third center Chhattisgarh Samarthan for Participatory Development (CGSPD) has been working in Chhattisgarh since inception of Samarthan. This center has a mixed bag of programs related with the above two centers viz. CSAP and CEWASH

1.2 Purpose of Employee Handbook

This manual is meant to provide a useful guide for Samarthan managers and employees in developing a clear and comprehensive approach to Human Resource Management in the NGO. It outlines the suggested processes and procedures with regard to Human Resource Management (HRM) and is meant to communicate all the employment and working conditions to staff. The Guide provides employees with a set of common and easily understood organizational policies and related procedures.

It is our hope that this HRM manual becomes a user-friendly document available to all staff. Your time to time comments during the use of the manual will be therefore appreciated to improve the policies and guidelines.

1.3 Samarthan Management Structure

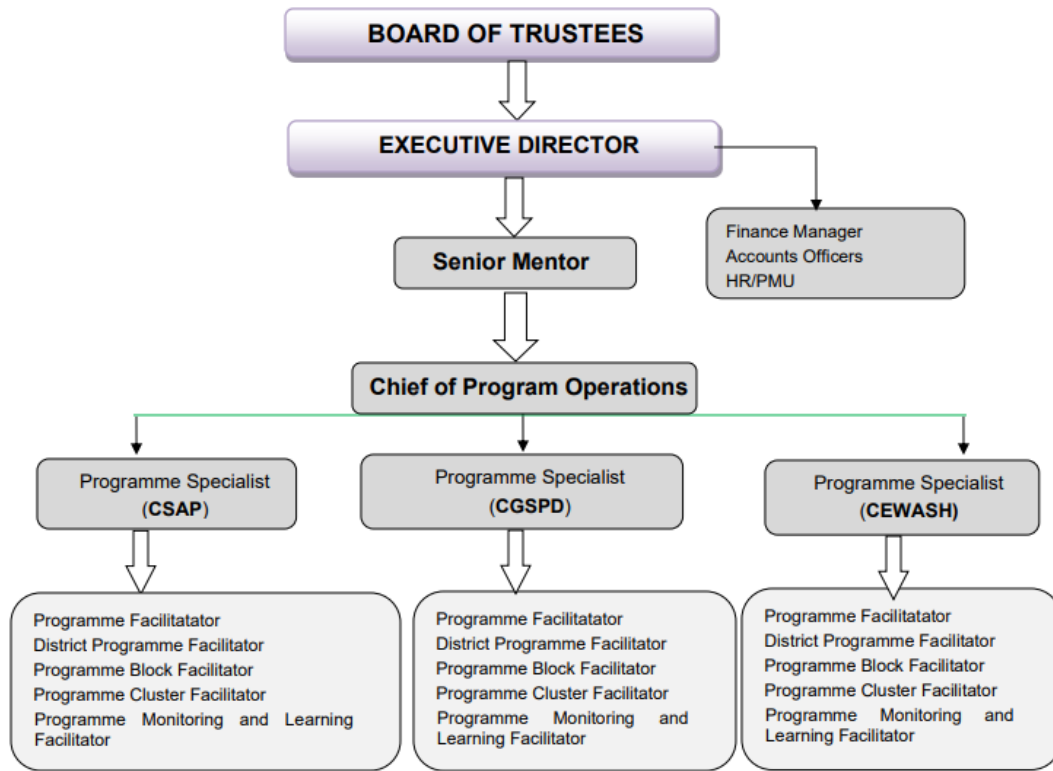

With a Board of Trustees as the overall decision-making body, Samarthan is headed by the Executive Director (who is also the Member Secretary of the Board of Trustees). The professionals (staff) looking after programs, administration and finance are drawn from various eputed institutions as well as constituting committed youth emerging from the grassroots as community leaders in our intervened areas. Such hiring practice enables the organisation to maintain balance between extensive experience and updated skills. Research, training, capacity building and advocacy pertaining to various sectors such as Education, Health, Governance, Participatory Planning, and so on are the work areas.

Samarthan - Organization Structure

1.4 Samarthan Vision, Mission and Aims

1.4.1 Samarthan Vision

Every citizen contributes meaningfully in shaping democratic State and enjoys benefits based on the principles of equality and equity.

1.4.2 Samarthan Mission

Promote and support participatory governance for equity and inclusion in development processes by capacity building, generating evidences and advocating the perspective of the most marginalized for enriched democracy

1.4.3 Samarthan Strategic Aims

- To develop as a centre for research based advocacy on social justice issues and citizens' rights in the areas of decentralized governance and development, including the promotion of the Right to Information Act.
- Monitor service delivery systems using participatory monitoring, dissemination of experiences and examining data from legitimate perspectives.
- Capacity building to improve effectiveness of social change organizations in decentralised governance, including media and academia.
- Encourage marginalised groups to enroll in leadership posts within voluntary organisations through capacity building and the development of learning materials.
- Develop effective models for participatory governance and development alongside partner and voluntary organisations to be used by policy makers.
